- b) Incoming GME residents in the Pediatrics program must be PALS certified prior to the start of their GME training. During the onboarding process, PGY-1 residents requiring initial PALS certification are provided the option to register for the UVM Medical Center course which occurs prior to the start of orientation.
- c) Ongoing maintenance of ACLS and/or PALS certification is the responsibility of the GME training programs.

2. Process Renewal of certification

- a) GME office notifies the program director (PD) and program administrator (PA) of residents/fellows requiring renewal of certification.
- b) GME office provides dates/times for these renewals.
 - o Programs are expected to enroll their residents/fellows into renewal sessions to avoid lapse in certification.

- c) Residents/Fellows are expected to keep their scheduled renewal session or communicate in advance the need to change to another session within the renewal window.
 - d) Residents/Fellows who laps in certification are removed from clinical duty and reading/research experiences until their renewal is completed. They must use their vacation days until they complete their recertification.
- 3. Fee Payment
 - a) GME Office pays the fee for the incoming PGY-1 residents who require initial ACLS certification per policy and who take the course identified by the GME Office.
 - o Residents can obtain certification elsewhere, but the GME Office will not reimburse ACLS training taken outside of UVM Medical Center.
 - b) Renewal of ACLS certification is not reimbursable by the GME office. Renewal fees must be paid by the program or resident/fellow.
- 4. Registration
 - a) During the onboarding process, PGY-1 residents requiring initial ACLS certification are provided the option to register for the UVM Medical Center.
 - b) GME office enrolls and registers residents/fellows into the on-line training module(s) that must be completed prior to their hands-on skills appointment.
